NCR – Destruction for Destructions Sake

NCR were perfectly aware of the financial shambles in NCR Belgium that enabled Mike Buchanan uncontrolled access to NCR funds.

NCR were perfectly aware that there were many Postal Administrations in the developing world that had invested hard-earned funds and many years of effort into projects dependent on PSL and NCR to deliver.

NCR were perfectly aware that I had worked tirelessly as a consultant for NCR for many years with great success.

NCR were perfectly aware that I had been lied to and deceived by their employee, Mike Buchanan, who inveigled me into this affair against my will.

NCR were perfectly aware that I had invested my own funds and my own personal borrowings in order to protect our customers when NCR pulled out of the program.

NCR were perfectly aware that Mike Buchanan had stolen well over 90% of the funds taken.

NCR were perfectly aware that, whilst I had taken approximately £45,000, I had paid NCR approximately £320,000.

Nevertheless NCR conducted a vicious and vindictive attack on me and everything close to me. They purposely destroyed my business and along with it the many projects in the developing world for which our customers had invested so much. What knock on effect, I wonder, did this have on the Postmaster Generals, who had to go back to their governments to explain that such investment and hard work had been wasted; and what happened to all those hardworking operational and technical staff that worked so hard on the projects.

They took my life savings and wanted more.

They destroyed my family heaping stress on my wife and two children.

Their destruction knocked on to the destruction caused by Barclays Bank who on a number of occasions tried to make me homeless. Barclays also tried to make my mother homeless.

What was the point of such destruction?
